2002 - 2003: Progress toward simplifying the structure; add minimalism to AE.

1992: Closed 22-year program in seascape abstractions.

1991: Began computerized subjective abstractions using image structuring started in late 1987.

1988: By searching through early paintings of the '60's to find Roads not Taken, discovered an opening covering color, mass, texture, and paint as subjects. Small work on paper and canvas include wax and egg yoke as part of the oil medium. Larger pieces on canvas are executed in acrylic polymer with added materials.

Late 1987: Began working again with painting and techniques related to automatism and subjective esthetics in oil on paper and canvas.

1973: Abandoned figure painting and returned to abstraction working from an interest in Cy Twombly, Antoni Tàpies, and John Cage. Work is conceptually related to Automatism and non-objective esthetics using linear structures.

1967: Became interested in working with the human figure using oil and airbrush techniques in addition to traditional techniques. Francis Bacon and Paul Wunderlich influences.

1960's: Influenced by Abstract Expressionism; H. Hofmann, J. Pollock, M. Rothko, A. Gottlieb and P. Guston; European artists Nicholas De Stael and Asgar Jorn. Themes: Iowa landscape and Cape Cod land/seascape.

Statement

Art is about what the artist sees and about what he or she can make other people see. Through my work I try to create an encapsulation of a private moment of seeing-feeling. This presentation takes on the action of a mirror. The audience — which includes the artist once a piece becomes public — manipulates this issue to locate a private connection to the art; to catch a glimpse of a confidentiality of self. This, at times, can be an uneasy experience. Herein lies the truth in art — its purpose regardless of medium or style.
